

HARMONY KEYNOTE

Sounded by Chairman Starr at The Democratic State Convention.

Plain Speech Full of Homely Truths That Appeal to Democrats to Bury all Differences and Stand Solidly Against The Common Enemy.

Columbus, O., May 26.—R. L. Starr, the Bryan editor, made a stirring plea for party harmony in accepting the place of temporary chairman of the convention Wednesday morning.

"We are met here together on this occasion," said Chairman Starr, "not to destroy by personal bickerings, but to preserve the harmony of judgment these forms of government that best promote the blessings of liberty, the preservation of property and the enjoyment of life.

"Democracy is a grand, patriotic, liberty-inspiring word and means a government of, for and by the people.

"Democracy in its broad, comprehensive sense is an expression of government that emanates from those who are governed.

Republicans Boss-Ridden.

"The principle of democracy in the Republican party is dominated by the boss. The organization of Cox, Foraker, Herrick and their like, crucifies democracy wherever found. The independent Republican who dares to raise the voice of protest is politically boycotted and assassinated. He is stripped of every hope of political preferment and honor and is politically tarred and feathered.

"The republic is beset with two evils—one, that myriad of grafters, hoodlums and bosses who swarm, crawl and wriggle like maggots through a putrid carcass in the Republican party, and the other, that spirit of unrecconcilable dissension in the Democratic party.

Interests Must Combine.

"Where is the Democrat whose cheek has not burned with anger, or whose head has not hung in shame, as he reads or listens to words of vituperative vilification, libel and slander bandied between warring factions, whether they be of Hearst, Parker, Cleveland, Bryan or otherwise. Is the mere preference of men a crime?

"We want the yeoman service of Parker and his friends in the coming campaign; we want the energy and dash of Hearst and his friends in the coming battle; we want the oratory of Bryan and Cochran, the political management of Hill and Gorman, and the mature judgment of Cleveland in the impending struggle.

"A common danger and calamity, a common spirit and patriotic duty should make brethren of us all, and here in Ohio we want the united efforts of Johnson, McLean, Lentz, Kilbourne and the great Democratic party to join in one gigantic effort to turn back the flood of Republican corruption that threatens to overwhelm the state.

Legislature Scored.

"If a Democratic legislature had done what the late Republican legislature has performed, the state of Ohio this fall would go 500,000 Republican. No Democratic legislature would dare fill the state house and the halls of legislation with the board of worthless, tax-eating janitors, spittoon cleaners and hangers-on. No Democratic legislature would dare treat as a joke the drunken revels of a legislative committee visiting a state institution. No Democratic legislature would dare create the flood of new offices at an enormous expense to the state. No Democratic legislature would dare involve the state in extravagant indebtedness, disgrace its sittings by a swarm of lobbyists, and destroy the principles of home rule involved in our spring elections, under the lying pretense of party economy.

The Democratic Party

"Democrats, your duty to your country, your neighbors, yourselves, your duty to your party, your duty to the memory of those great and grand Democrats who fought so well at the building of the republic, demand that you cease your envying and contention and prove yourselves worthy sons of those noble sires by standing shoulder to shoulder in our common cause against this fearful, stupendous and appalling state of public debauchery and corruption.

"Republicans are amazed at the sight of their auction block politicians, and disgusted at the sale of offices by political peanut vendors. Every self-respecting Republican knows full well that the grand old party of Lincoln, Grant and Sherman is dead, and in its place is arisen the Greedy Order of Mothhouse politicians, insatiable hoodlums and omnipresent grafters.

The Honesty Platform.

"Honesty in politics, economy in the administration of government is a platform broad enough for all to stand upon, and comprehensive enough for every commercial development, and is the only platform upon which any reformer can stand and live.

"Democrats should raise on high once again that grand old Democratic principle of tariff for revenue only and should oppose as of old that national system of corruption and bribery known as a 'protective tariff'.

"The hope of gain and the financial inducements held out by the protective tariff have bought more votes than all other methods combined. It has done more to debauch public morals, corrupt the youth of the land, instill the system of graft, boodle and speculation in municipal, state and national affairs than all other inventions combined.

Combine the Forces.

"Democrats, let us here highly resolve that by the aid of Cleveland, Bryan, Hill, Gorman, Parker, Hearst, Johnson, McLean, without reference to previous conditions of political belief, financial doctrines or tariff dogma, that Republican misrule shall cease, and that the rascals in high and low places shall be turned out and that a government of, for and by the people be restored."

THE UNIT RULE

Adopted at the State Convention, so That Ohio Will Be as Potent as Other States in the National Councils at St. Louis.

Columbus, O., May 26.—The one great important action of the Democratic convention was the adoption of the resolution empowering a majority of the delegates from Ohio to the St. Louis convention to enforce the unit rule.

Unhampered by candidates and unfettered by instructions, the delegation will rank high in the national gathering and no doubt will occupy an enviable position as a factor in deciding the personnel of the ticket and the character of the platform. That conservatism will mark its actions is certain, for the State convention said as much when it decided that the unit rule might be used to enforce the decree of the majority. Nor was there anything that might be construed as a brutal force occurring to influence this decision.

The convention was taken by surprise when the radicals, led by Lewis D. Johnson of Champaign county, made the nomination to strike the rule from the platform. For a moment it sprawled like a big, lubberly boy upset, but recovered while a sharp and incisive debate was being carried on, and voted by a large margin to sustain the action of the committee on resolutions. The only hope that the radicals had was to outwit rather than to outvote the conservatives.

In its deliberations the convention was slow and unwieldy, being in continuous session from 10 o'clock in the morning until almost 7 in the evening. If any other evidence was wanted that there was lack of personal leadership and of ring domination this fact would show it.

In every respect the convention was the ideal of the reformer and the magazine politician. It acted for itself in everything. No stampede seemed to affect its deliberate purpose to do the best thing under the circumstances. While it seemed to possess a crude fashion of doing things, yet when the results were achieved it was observed that it made as few mistakes as the best arranged machine convention.

THE TICKET

And Delegates-at-Large Chosen at the Convention.

Columbus, O., May 26.—The following is the ticket nominated by the Democratic convention at Columbus, Wednesday:

Secretary of State—A. P. Sandles of Ottawa.

Supreme Judge—Philip J. Renner, of Cincinnati.

Clerk of Supreme Court—Peter Mahaffey of Cambridge.

Dairy and Food Commissioner—Quinn M. Gravatt of Wooster.

Member of the Board of Public Works—James H. Ferguson, Springfield.

There was a contest for one place only—that of the nomination for Secretary of State. Webster P. Huntington, of this city, announced his candidacy some weeks ago. His name was presented to the convention by the veteran editor, Colonel W. A. Taylor of Columbus, who himself was a candidate 12 years ago. The name of A. P. Sandles of Putnam county, was placed before the convention by J. W. Smith of the same county.

Mr. Sandles was not known as a candidate until Tuesday morning. By reason of the fact that he was secretary of last year's Executive committee he was well known to many of the delegates. Added to this was the support of the Cuyahoga county delegation, which lined up for him because Huntington was not known a year ago as an ardent Johnson voter. Sandles received 422 of the votes of the convention and Huntington 298. Franklin county gave Huntington the solid vote of the delegation. Hamilton county gave Sandles 20 votes and Huntington 25. Lucas county split its 19 votes, 16 for Huntington and 3 for Sandles. Montgomery county favored Sandles with 12 and Huntington 9. The remainder of the delegations split in very much the same way.

Mr. Huntington moved to make the nomination unanimous. He said he gave the convention credit for having more sense than he had anticipated—for he was satisfied that the best man had been selected. This handsome speech received great applause.

Electors at large and the Democratic Big Four were selected as follows: Electors-at-Large—John A. McDowell of Millersburg, and A. J. Pearson of Woodsfield. Delegates-at-Large—William S. Thomas of Springfield; John A. McMahon of Dayton; Edward H. Moore of Youngstown, and Charles P. Salen of Cleveland.

Alternates—David L. Bockwell of Ravenna; John Sheehan of Cincinnati; Henry C. Gray of Jamilton, and William E. Decker of Paulding.

GIRLS DROWN

Were in Wading and Were Swept to Death by Swift Current, Wednesday.

Stuebenville, O., May 26.—A double drowning occurred in Big Yellow creek at Hammondsville Wednesday. The dead are: Annie Platt, aged 11 years; Sadie E. Hardie, aged 12 years. It is not fully known how the drowning occurred, but the girls are supposed to have gone wading in the stream, as they had their shoes off when found. It is probable they ventured out too far and were swept away by the swift current. The bodies were recovered.

FUMES

In a Tunnel Suffocated Ten Men

ACCIDENT IN ANTHRACITE COAL FIELD

The Gases Came from Small Locomotive.

MINE SUPERINTENDENT DEAD.

While the Others Were Laborers—First Fatal Accident in This Tunnel for Forty Years.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 26.—A telegram received at the Susquehanna Coal company's office in this city Wednesday evening states that ten miners were suffocated to death by gas and sulphur fumes from a small locomotive in the workings of Summit Branch Coal company at Williamsstown, Dauphin county.

The accident was one of the most regular in the history of the anthracite mines and no reason for it can be assigned by the officials. The victims include Michael Golden, general inside foreman of the company, and nine miners and laborers.

The tunnel in which the accident occurred is one mile in length and is used by the coal company to convey the coal mined in the workings in the Bear Valley to the breaker in the Williams Valley. The men employed in the mines in the Bear Valley who reside in Williamsstown, have made a practice for years to ride to and from their work on the trips of cars that are hauled between the two valleys by small locomotives.

About 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, a general inside foreman, Golden, and about 50 miners, boarded a loaded trip which was about to be hauled from Bear Valley to Williamsstown. Everything went all right until about half of the journey was made, when some of the men attracted the attention of the engineer, who at once stopped, and it was found that nearly every man in the party on the cars had been overcome by the gas and sulphur, which emanated from the stack of the locomotive and floated over them. The engineer at once crowded on all steam possible and the unconscious men were hurried to the Williamsstown end of the tunnel. Here help was at once summoned and the men were taken to the surface, where a corps of physicians made every possible effort to resuscitate them, but aid came too late for foreman Golden and the other victims.

TYNER

WAS ACQUITTED OF COMPLICITY IN POSTAL FRAUDS.

Aged Defendant in His Wheel Chair Completely Broke Down When Verdict Was Read.

Washington, May 26.—Within 22 minutes of the retirement of the jury in the case of James N. Tyner and Harrison J. Barrett, tried on a charge of conspiracy in connection with their duties as law officers of the postoffice department, a verdict of not guilty was returned. The throng which filled the court room throughout the arguments to the jury hardly had time to leave the building before the jury was back and the foreman announced that a verdict had been reached. General Tyner, expecting a longer wait had been wheeled from the room, and his nephew and co-defendant, hastened to give an order which caused him to return.

General Tyner appeared greatly excited as he attempted to face the jury, and when the verdict was returned he broke down completely. Several of the jurors wept with him and all of them shook hands with him.

The Tyner-Barrett case was begun on May 2, and has been before the court 19 full days. A great mass of testimony was offered. The prosecution brought forward an army of witnesses, a majority of whom were former officers of bond investment companies, through which Harrison J. Barrett, the junior defendant, was alleged to have profited after he left the postoffice department by practicing before his uncle, who remained in the department. The principal arguments made Wednesday were by A. S. Worthington for the defense and Major Holmes Conrad, special counsel for the government, for the prosecution. The latter directed his efforts almost entirely in an attempt to counteract any influence on the jurors' verdict which might result from sympathy for General Tyner. He told the jury that it had no right to entertain sympathy for General Tyner or the young wife of Mr. Barrett, who was a witness in the defendant's behalf.

BOILERS

OF THE TOWBOAT FRED WILSON EXPLODED

Big Steamer Shattered Into Small Bits—Twelve or Fifteen Killed and Ten Seriously Injured.

Louisville, Ky., May 26.—With a terrific detonation the boilers of the towboat Fred Wilson exploded at 2:25 o'clock Thursday morning, killing twelve or fifteen men and seriously injuring ten others, and completely wrecking the boat.

The explosion came without warning and so great was the pressure and so large the boiler that a big steamer was shattered into small bits, while the crew was blown into the air, some falling into the river, others landing on the embankment, while some less fortunate were caught in the wreckage and killed instantly.

The known dead are: Joseph Price, Pittsburg; Captain Al Miller of Louisville, pilot; Henry Sykes of Pittsburg; an unknown insurance man of Pittsburg, and a friend of Captain Price, making the trip as a pleasure excursion; Sherrin Shively, the engineer; Wm. Thornton, colored deck hand; Joseph Warren, colored deck hand, four unknown white men, all deck hands; the cook and steward, both white men. Loss $40,000.

STUDENTS

OF O. S. U. WHO RIOTED AT DELAWARE ARRESTED

And Were Fined in Police Court—Athletic Relations With Ohio State Severed by Wesleyan.

Delaware, O., May 26.—Police court was crowded to the very doors this morning when Mayor Clippinger arrived. The five Ohio State University students after a sleepless night spent in the city prison were arraigned at once. The first, Frank Hulme, son of C. Y. Hulme of Columbus, pleaded guilty to the charge of disturbing the peace, and intoxication and was fined $10 and costs. His father was present at the hearing and told the mayor to give his son what he would any other offender.

George Schlessinger pleaded guilty to the theft of a pie from one of the restaurants and was also given $10.00 and costs. Milton Matthews, son of City Solicitor E. P. Matthews of Dayton, was fined $20 and costs.

The charge against the young man, and to which he pleaded guilty, was that of assaulting an officer.

Leroy Williamson and James McChotock, both of Columbus, pleaded not guilty to the charges against them, but later changed their plea to guilty and were fined $10 and costs apiece. Immediately after the fines were imposed friends who stayed over last night scurried for telegraph offices and sent the wires hot with messages for money.

Delaware, O., May 26.—At a special meeting of the faculty of Ohio Wesleyan University called this morning, action was taken severing completely all athletic relations with Ohio State University in the future. This action grows out of the riotous conduct of the Ohio State students while attending a ball game with Ohio Wesleyan University yesterday.

EXPLODING A LINE OF MINES BY COUNTERMINING.

Thus far during the Russo-Japanese war the submarine mine has been much in evidence. The Russians have lost several ships and at least a thousand men by explosions of their own or Japanese mines. The illustration shows how a mine field is destroyed by countermining—that is, by placing near the field other mines which, when exploded, set off those in the field. A submarine mine is usually charged with several hundred pounds of gun cotton and is either exploded by contact with the ship to be destroyed or by electricity.

RUSSIA WILL USE MINES.

Berlin, May 26.—It is learned at the foreign office that Russia recognizes the justice of the complaints of America and England against the indiscriminate strewing of floating mines about the water ways of the Yellow sea and the Gulf of Pechili. Russia, however, will continue to use these mines throughout the war, and will afterwards negotiate with America and England and the other powers regarding the limitations to their use in future wars.

LOCKJAW FROM INJURED FINGER

Cambridge, O., May 26.—Charles Hallett, the B & O car inspector at this point is very ill suffering with lockjaw. Some time ago Mr. Hallett met with an accident at Barnesville, in which the first finger of his right hand was badly cut. The injury was attended to at the time but during the last few days it has been bothering him, blood poisoning having set in, and it was decided best to amputate the injured finger. This was done, but lockjaw came on and Wednesday afternoon Mr. Hallett was reported as being very low with the chances for recovery against him.

Bought Fortune at Auction.

New York, May 26.—Five $1,000 treasury notes have been found in an old mahogany coat purchased by Elmer Ekstrom of Bogota, N. J., at an auction sale of undclaimed baggage in New York city.

Near the bottom of the trunk which contained it, were any marks of identification. Ekstrom was about to throw the garment away when he discovered the treasure (carefully wrapped in paper). The lucky buyer is 63 years old and will at once take a vacation in Europe.

TRITON ISLAND

[Copyright, 1904, by C. B. Lewis.]

John Andrews, a sailor I met in hospital at Liverpool, told me that three years before he was wrecked on Triton island, in the China sea, where he found a big Chinese junk full of silver bars worth $80,000. He removed the bars to a grove and two weeks later was rescued by a passing vessel.

Resolved to get the treasure, I made up a party to do so.

Five of us were to make up a purse for the expense and share and share alike. Of course the arrangement was not concluded until the other four had seen Andrews and heard his story and satisfied themselves as to its truth. After carefully canvassing the matter it was thought best that he and I should take steamer to Singapore and there hire and man a sailing craft to proceed to the island and fetch away the treasure.

When we reached Singapore the first move was to find and charter a craft. I cautioned my man over and over again not to drop a hint of what we were after. Indeed, after finding a craft to please me we did not pretend to know each other in public, and he shipped aboard of her in the regular way as a foremast hand.

I had not seen Andrews for three or four days when I called at his boarding house one evening to give him fresh instructions and found him so drunk that I was unable to arouse him. By a few careless inquiries from the landlady I learned that he had been knocking around all day with two strangers, one of whom was chief mate of an American vessel and just out of hospital after a run of fever.

Next morning I found Andrews quite sobered up and very much ashamed of himself. He plainly told me that he feared he had said too much to the strangers the day previous. He had not intended to go on a spree, and it was his belief that he had been drugged. He was frightened and repentant, but our only recourse was to hope that no harm had been done and to push along as fast as possible.

Two days before we were ready to sail, an Arab dhow, which had been berthed near our craft and aboard of which I had seen the Yankee mate and several other English speaking people, sailed away to the north, leaving the harbor at night and as secretly as possible.

From the moment of the departure of the dhow I felt sure that she was acting on a hint dropped by Andrews. It was a question of how much he had told. If he had not mentioned the name of the island, then we had still a good show. The news of the loss of the junk at sea was public property in a way, and at least two sailing expeditions had spent some time trying to solve the mystery of her fate. We worked day and night to get off, and we were only two days behind the dhow. She had left with a fair wind, and all the way up to the Gulf of Siam we had wretched luck and no show whatever to overtake her.

It was a long, dreary voyage we had up the China sea, and it was not half complete before Andrews fell ill. His only ailment was rheumatism. For many long months he had dropped and planned on what he would do when that treasure was recovered. His share of it, with wages added, would enable him to leave the sea and spend the rest of his days on land. It was the fear that he had been foolish enough to betray the secret that harassed him until he became seriously ill.

On arriving at the island at last a boat was sent off to see if the place was clear. She found no craft and went far enough up the bay to see the wreck of the junk. We then lowered another boat and towed our craft in, and as soon as she had been anchored, and made snug we landed and made straight for the thicket where the silver bars had been hidden away years before.

It did not take us a minute to discover that they had been removed, and that within a few days. In place of them were broken spades and the prints of shoes, and on the beach near the wreck were the ashes of a campfire. We beat up the locality, thinking the bars might have been removed to a new place, and before we were done with the search we took in the whole island.

We had at last to face the fact that some one had got ahead of us and secured the treasure, and Andrews was so upset by it that he took to his bed and did nothing but lament and call down curses on the heads of the unknown. The day before we were to leave he died, and we buried him in the pit from which the silver bars had been taken. In widening the grave we came across a single bar which had been accidentally left behind, but that was our sole share of the loot we had come so far to bear away.

We of course suspected that the dhow which had sailed away ahead of us had got the money, but found out nothing positive until the day we buried Andrews. Then one of the men picked up a piece of paper that had once been affixed to a tree, but had later on been detached by the wind. On it was scrawled in pencil and in a sailor's hand:

"When you get hold of another good thing in the treasure line don't take a drunken man into it to give the secret away. The Yankee mate and his friends are much obliged to the man who gabbed. Had he kept his mouth shut we would still have been poor sailors instead of rich men."

We made Singapore in safety, but there was not a man aboard who would have cared had a typhoon dismasted and sent us down to keep company with the thousands of other treasure seekers who have had a good thing and lost it.

The Cheap Watch Habit.

"When cheap watches first came out," said a jeweler, "a man who carried one was as chary about showing it as he would be about exhibiting a white sticker front to hide a dandelion shirt. Now it's different. A man with a nickel watch will walk right up to a chronometer exhibited in a jeweler's window, pull out his timepiece and regulate it with as much pride and earnestness as though it was a Jurgensen. The fact that other men are looking over his shoulder regulating gold watches does not faze him.

"A man came in here with a dollar watch to be repaired. 'It will cost you fifty cents,' I said.

"Oh, go ahead," he replied. "I'll save fifty cents anyhow. I've got a gold one at my uncle's. Every little while I drop around to take a look at it and pay the interest. I suppose I'll take it out some day. Meanwhile, I've got mighty attached to this one."

Japan's Few Paupers.

The Japanese are never able to understand how it is that, though their population is about the same as ours, they have only 21,000 paupers, while we have about 1,000,000. The difference is due to the Japanese attitude toward old age and parenthood. Most of their old paupers are children or elderly people whom earthquakes have deprived of their breadwinners. Old age is all but sacred in Japan.—London Chronicle.

The Girl at Devil's Tower

By IZOLA L. FORRESTER

Copyright, 1904, by T. C. McClure

The first time that Campbell saw her she was standing in the doorway of the schoolhouse, ringing a huge, hollow sounding bell, while the children scurried in all directions like a flock of frightened sage hens.

Campbell pulled up Cyclone and watched. There had been no school at Devil's Tower for over a year. The last teacher had been a young fellow from Kansas City. The two Chibouque boys did him up one day when he called Louis "a half breed ignoramus." Louis said he wouldn't be called any name he didn't know the meaning of. The risk was too great. So he did up the teacher, and the key was turned in the schoolhouse door.

Campbell stared at the new school-ma'am admiringly. More than that, when her flock was safe inside he rode leisurely up to the open windows and stared in them—not rudely, but interestedly.

She looked absurdly young perched up behind the rough plank desk. She was fair. A bunch of purple wild flowers was fastened in her hair. Jules Chibouque fired a tattered hat at the row of nails back of the teacher. It fell short of the mark and struck the bunch of purple flowers. Campbell's leg was half out of the saddle when the girl called:

"Jules, you come here." It was a good, commanding voice. Campbell waited. Jules stalked down to the desk and was ordered to crawl beneath it in disgrace. A knothole offered golden opportunities, and Jules' tongue wagged merrily through it at an appreciative audience.

The little school-ma'am bent forward and gave the offending member a royal slap with an oak ruler. Jules howled in pain, and Campbell rode on rejoicing. Devil's Tower was to know discipline at last.

He found out at the Arrow Head ranch that she was old Colby's niece.

HE SWUNG HIS LARIAT STRAIGHT AT THE PONY'S HEAD.

and was boarding there. Also that she was nineteen, from Chicago, and her name was Ethel Maude Colby. The Colby did not affect him, but all the way home from the ranch and during the week that followed the name of Ethel rang in his ears like a refrain of half forgotten music.

Every day Campbell rode up the river road and looked in the schoolhouse window just for a glimpse of the pretty blond head. One Saturday night he started wildly for the Arrow Head ranch, and all the way home Cyclone kept pace with the joyous whistling, for he had been introduced to her, and she had blushed, and all the world was full of promise.

After that night Cyclone was ridden at a breakneck speed every afternoon from Campbell's ranch down at Five Forks to the bend in the river road, there to wait patiently and peacefully until a certain figure in a trim gray skirt and white shirt waist rode down the path from the schoolhouse on a black pony and greeted him with sky eyed pleasure.

"Reckon Tom Campbell's shining up to ye, Ethel," old Colby said gravely when the wooing was well advanced.

The girl laughed and bent lower over her books at the kitchen table.

"It isn't anything, Uncle Ben."

The old ranchman glanced at her keenly through the rifts of smoke from his pipe.

"Ain't it? Tom seems to think it is. Got any objections to him?"

Edith laughed and shook her head.

"He's just a cowboy," she said, and looked up to find Tom Campbell's six foot two blocking the kitchen door.

There was a look in his frank gray eyes she had never seen there, not of anger or defeat, but simply determination.

The following day, long after the last of the children had gone, the school-ma'am still sat at her desk. It had been raining all day—a wild autumn rain that came in fitful dashes against the window panes, with now and then the heavy crash of thunder.

The door opened suddenly with a bang, and Campbell entered, dripping with rain and smiling.

"I was just passing by," he began, as if he had not raced his broncho for the last five miles. "It's a bad storm and getting worse."

"I must go, then." She rose hastily and reached for her hat on the row of nails back of the desk.

He came over and leaned on the desk.

"No, you mustn't. Wait till it lets up a bit." He lifted her pearl handled pen tenderly and curiously, as if it had been a stray feather dropped from an angel's wing. "That's a mighty pretty thing, ain't it?" He met her eyes suddenly. "Say, I want to know if you meant what you said yonder, about my being a no account, rough and tumble cowboy?"

"I didn't say that."

"But you meant it." Her lashes dropped guiltily under his steady gaze. "I don't blame you. I know I'm different from your city breed, but love comes the same to a man whether he's a professor or a cowboy, you know. I'd make you mighty happy, Ethel, if you'd let me." His voice was low and tender. "Seems as if I don't want anything in life but you."

He bent nearer over the narrow, roughly painted desk, his eyes on a level with her own, but she looked away from him out of the little side window. It was splashed and blurred with rain, but she could see the faint outlines of the hills that lay like a barrier between the range country and the outer world. She had always hoped to go back some day, but the spell of the open and the glory of freedom stole over her with the low music of his voice. Somewhere in her heart she caught the echo to his own words and knew the power of their meaning.

"Seems as if I don't want anything in life but you."

A crash of thunder shook the little frame building, and she rose unsteadily.

"Will you please bring Gypsy from the shed for me," she said. "I must go before dark."

He hesitated.

"If you do, I shall go too. The dam up at Caribou run broke at 4 o'clock, and the river's racing like a mountain cascade."

It was nearly two miles to the old log bridge that spanned the river. Campbell did not try to talk. He took her silence and reserve as his answer, but his face looked almost stern in the shadow of his sombrero as he rode beside the black pony. As they neared the log bridge a vivid flash of lightning made both horses rear, and he caught Gypsy's bridle.

"We can't cross the river," he said. "You'll have to turn back."

"I can't," she answered over her shoulder, as the pony shook herself free. "The bridge is safe."

Before he could stop her she had ridden forward on to the frail logs, that shuddered and strained at the shock. There was a sudden rending, crushing sound, and the next instant the logs had parted and swept away on the foaming waters with Gypsy's terrified head and pawing hoofs showing between them.

One cry for help reached Campbell's ears, but that one changed all the world.

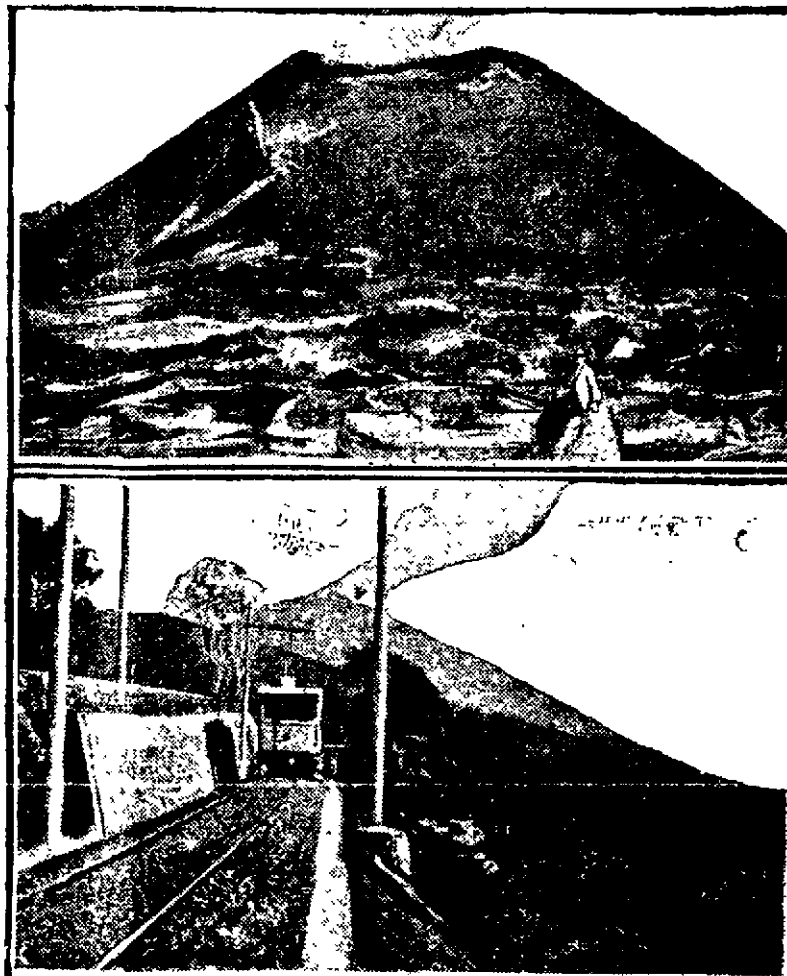

"Tom! Tom!" she called, and he headed Cyclone downstream in a race with the swollen, rushing river. As he came abreast of her he raised himself in his stirrups and swung his lariat straight for the pony's head. It fell and drew taut. Cyclone braced for the shock, as he had in many a roundup capture, and in a few seconds the black pony was stumbling up the bank, drenched and half strangled, but with her burden still safe in the saddle.

Campbell lifted the slim, fainting figure down and held her close in his arms, her white face on his shoulder. For one brief instant she seemed all his own, and he bent and kissed the pale, sweet lips that had so nearly drained the cup of death.

"Mine," he whispered beneath his breath. "Mine, just for now."

Her eyes opened, and she smiled up at him.

"For always, Tom," she said softly. "I'm glad you're a cowboy."

THE NEW TROLLEY LINE TO VESUVIUS.

The curious tourist may now ride up the slopes of smoking Vesuvius on a trolley car. The line starts from Pogliano, at the base of Italy's sleeping volcano and within a short distance of the shore of the bay of Naples. The old cable railway up the cone has been electrified, and a cog rail on the steepest part of the track adds to the safety of the trip. The car runs almost to the very lip of the crater.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Amelia Bingham will play in stock in Denver the coming summer.

John Drew is to have Robert Marshall's "Duke of Killiecrankie" next season.

Stage representations of President Roosevelt and Miss Alice Roosevelt were introduced to a Berlin audience recently in a farce entitled "A Mad Year."

William Faversham's next play will probably be a dramatization of Hamlin Garland's popular novel, "Hesper." The dramatic version is being made by Channing Pollock.

Grant Stewart, who has been playing the minister in "Countess Kate" with the Ethel Barrymore company, has replaced Arthur Elliott in the part of the judge in "The Girl From Kay's."

It has been decided by the managers interested in the all star revival of "The Two Orphans" in New York to send the company on the road next season for at least the rest of the year.

The energetic Henry W. Savage has two new musical pieces. George Ade's latest, "The Shogun," is making a stir in Chicago. Recently he produced "Woodland," a musical fantasy by Pixley and Luders.

Klaw & Erlanger will have another Lew Wallace eastern play which they hope may rival "Ben-Hur." They have bought the dramatic rights to "The Prince of India." The central figure will be the Wandering Jew.

SHORT STORIES.

Fifty oak and chestnut trees have been set out by the local foresters at Pittsfield, Vt.

The Red Indians in Canada are increasing in numbers. There are now more than 108,000.

The tribal relations of the Apaches have been dissolved, and they no longer look upon Geronimo as their chief. They consider him a childish old man who is too senile to advise them.

The twenty-seven states of Mexico through their legislatures have ratified the proposed changes in the federal constitution extending the presidential term to six years—it is now four—and creating the office of vice president.

A Brussels expert, M. Paul Otlet, estimates that from the invention of printing in the middle of the fifteenth century to January, 1900, 12,163,000 books have been issued. He also estimates that about 200,000 books are now annually issued.

At the second official trial of the new cruiser Denver she again failed to come up to her contract speed of seventeen knots, though she was very close to it. The builders will therefore get for her only $1,080,000, or $50,000 less than if she had made seventeen knots.

Plant Fossils Seen in Coal.

The substance of coal has been so compressed that the forms of the plants composing it cannot usually be seen, but when a piece of it is made so thin that it will transmit light and is then subjected to a powerful microscope vegetable structures may readily be distinguished. Immediately under every separate seam of coal there is a stratum of what is known as fire clay. This stratum is always present and contains in great abundance the fossil impressions of roots and stems and twigs, showing that it was once the soil from which vegetation grew luxuriantly.

It is common also to find fossil tree stems lying mashed flat between the layers of black slate which form the roofs of coal mines as well as the impressions of the leaves, nuts and seeds which fell from these trees while they were living. In some beds of coal whole trees have been found, with roots, branches, leaves and seeds complete and all converted into the same quality of coal as that by which they were surrounded.

Democratic State Convention.

(Enquirer)

That no political convention can do everything to suit each individual member of its party has come to be so familiar a proposition that pretty large differences are dismissed with a wave of the hand. The convention at Columbus Wednesday had less than usual of the discords and heart burnings which linger after adjournment, though in some of its work there were hot contests. The proceedings leave the Democratic party of the state in a better shape for conservative and deliberative consideration of grave questions than it has been in two or three years. There was a long stride back to safe moorings, and good promise of a return to steady and wholesome doctrines.

There will be general agreement on the platform. It arraigns the Republicans on their state record, and leaves several questions to the coming convention at St. Louis.

The unit rule was adopted, placing it in the power of the majority of the Ohio delegates to say how the entire forty-six votes shall be cast. Ohio has had the unit rule, or, as General Warner more appropriately called it, in a speech yesterday, the majority rule, in several national conventions, and this year the Democrats of nearly all the other states which have held conventions have taken the same course.

We shall be in the fashion, and the Ohio delegation being unhampered by instructions of any sort, direct or implied, complimentary or real, will be able to take advantage of the situation at St. Louis as it sees it, and make this state a commanding factor in the nomination of a ticket and the making of a platform.

The resolutions were adopted just as they came from a committee which had been in long nocturnal deliberation over the matter of principles, with the exception of one paragraph, which was put in by the convention after a close dispute and which will not be considered on all hands as the deliberate thought of the convention. However, it is a point on which there are differences in all parties, and belongs to a legislative rather than a political convention.

There were surprises in the selection of delegates at large, but altogether the big four will be found to be fairly distributed geographically and to pretty faithfully represent the elements which are active in the affairs of the party.

Let me turnish your bond.

ON VITAL STATE ISSUES

THE COMPLETE TEXT OF THE OHIO DEMOCRATIC STATE PLATFORM ADOPTED IS AS FOLLOWS:

"The Democratic party of Ohio in convention assembled on this 25th day of May, 1904, in the city of Columbus, O., while firmly adhering to all living Democratic principles, as time and again declared by Democratic conventions, recommend that the formal announcement of purely national questions be referred to the national convention soon to convene at St. Louis.

"On state issues the Democratic party of Ohio offers the people relief from the political trust which has long controlled every department of the state government. Its owners have grown arrogant, reckless and corrupt secure, they think, in the union of predatory forces against the people who are not organized in their own defense.

"They have multiplied offices to make places for their followers, increased salaries and otherwise swollen the public expenses to unprecedented figures, devising new ways to tax the people to meet them, and have failed to redeem their promise to enact a law providing compensation for county officers commensurate with services rendered.

"They have gerrymandered congressional, legislative and even judicial districts, to make it harder for the people to dislodge them; abolished spring elections for local offices with the like purpose, and by restrictions of the official ballot they have prevented effective union of citizens at the polls.

"They have changed the government of the public schools in order to secure them as their prey, and have deprived townships and municipalities of the right of home rule. They have laid plans to rob the state of its canals, which they would have already carried out but for the Democratic votes in the general assembly, and which they will surely accomplish if the people, knowing their designs, do not cast them out. The Democratic party promises, if intrusted with authority, to reduce public expenses and taxation, to save the property of the state, and to restore government by the people, as designed by its founders.

"We favor the improvement of public roads throughout the state, and commend the efforts of the Democratic minority of the last legislature in that behalf.

"The Ohio delegation is directed to cast the entire 46 votes in the national convention as the majority of those present and voting shall decide, when such majority shall determine that course to be advisable.

"We hereby pledge our utmost effort to bring about such legislation as will compel the railroad companies operating in Ohio to carry passengers for the uniform rate of two cents per mile."

Hardships Endured in the Flight From Port Arthur--Russian Physician Describes Experience of Passengers at Station.

One of the many Russian physicians who were sent to the front has written a letter describing his experiences en route, which was recently published in the Goniec, a daily newspaper of Warsaw, and of which this is a translation: "This station is Manchuria," cried the conductor as the train slowed up along an open platform. Some of us got out of the cars. Baggage was being literally dumped out of the baggage cars. Baskets, trunks, hand baskets, satchels in one great heap are piled up in front of the car. By the light of the flickering oil lamps it is difficult to see what is yours. "Everywhere uproar, noise and military orders.

"Porter, this way," cries a voice in the crowd. "I will pay 5 rubles." "I'll pay 10 rubles," cries another. "Come, this way, 10 rubles!" "Gentlemen," the conductor calls through the compartments, "you must all get out. We will have to take on troops." "And where shall we go?" "You will have to wait at the station for the next train. You will have to change cars here and buy new tickets." "Buy tickets!" Everybody repeats these words of the conductor, and there is a general rush for the ticket office. There another disappointment awaits us, for the ticket seller shouts: "Plenty of time, plenty of time! There will not be another train for two days!"

We ask what we shall do. "Wait," is the laconic reply. Very well. We prepare for the tedious delay, but we are confronted by another difficulty. The station building is not very large; indeed it is very small. It consists of three rooms, which are supposed to afford shelter to the passengers of forty cars. There is not room for all of us, and some are compelled to spend the night on the platform with a temperature of 15 degrees below freezing. Some of us keep awake awaiting the arrival of trains from the front, and others lie down to sleep. "Don't go to sleep," some one cries. "You might freeze to death." But how is any one to go forty-eight hours without sleep, especially when we have been traveling for weeks?

Trains from the front are arriving every few hours. They bring news from Port Arthur. The crowd in the waiting room is growing all the time. Out of one of the trains descends a young woman. She is dressed in a nightgown, wrapped in a heavy blanket, and she wears big felt boots. Her hair is disheveled and she can hardly stand up, yet she staggers from one corner to another in vain searching for rest. She was one of the inhabitants of Port Arthur, but fled the town at the first bombardment. When the boom of the first shot thundered over the city she became terror-stricken and thought of nothing but flight. How she reached Manchuria she knows not. She has only one idea, and that is flight, no matter where to. Among the other passengers are two cold-blooded Englishmen. One of them shows to the crowd a piece of a shell which exploded in front of his house in Port Arthur. They are watched with mistrust, and from mouth to mouth run in whispers the words, "Traitors and spies." One of them must have overheard the remarks, for he replies with calm force: "We are neutral." In one corner of the room, along the cold stove, a young mother has nestled down with her three children. The poor little ones lie on a trunk and are doubled up with cold. Dawn sends its gray light into the room and illumines our pale and drawn faces. We are all silent. The cold has nipped our strength.

"Mother," cries one of the children. "I am hungry." "I am hungry," cries another. "This voice brings us back to life and awakens our appetites." "I will buy you something," says the young mother, and she goes to the station restaurant. When she returns she brings the sad information that the pantry is empty. The food is all gone, there is not even a breadcrumb or a morsel of meat left. Some of us go down to the village and succeed in getting a little something, for which we pay exorbitant prices. There are only two families left in the village, the others having fled. Those that could not buy anything ask the station agent for help, but the only encouragement he can give them is that the train will arrive in about ten hours and that they may be able to get food at the next station. The ten hours seem endless. At last the train pulls slowly into the station. We greet it in silence and climb aboard. At last!

GIRLS GARBED LIKE BOYS.

Chicago Woman Puts Theories Into Practice Behind Wall.

Mrs. Lillie Crane Lillie of Chicago, daughter of Millionaire Richard T. Crane, who recently told the Hull House Woman's club that little girls should be dressed like little boys, carries out her theories in her own family, but has had to build a high brick wall around her home to keep the curious from staring at her children, says a special Chicago dispatch.

Mrs. Lillie has two children of her own, Catherine, aged four, and Margaret, fifteen months. She has adopted two boys, Albert, eleven, and Ethan, four. Ethan and Catherine are dressed alike and encouraged to play the same games and have the same interests.

Mrs. Lillie believes girls should dress like boys until they are twelve years old.

"Girls are narrow minded and petty because they have never had a chance to be anything else. We should treat children as individuals, not as members of a sex. If a boy wants a doll he ought to have it, and the girl who would rather climb trees ought not to be obliged to stay in the house and dress dolls. Playing with dolls doesn't show a maternal instinct. That's all nonsense."

"I try to bring my children up without hearing anything about the difference in what a boy may do and what a girl may do."

MIKADO'S ECONOMY.

Japanese Emperor Eats From Only One Dish, a Rice Bowl.

Gurney Bonford, a Friends missionary in Japan, writing to relatives in Richmond, Ind., thus describes the war situation in Japan, says the Kansas City Times:

"A remarkable thing is the surprising economy which is observed in every place. People are not spending more money than is absolutely necessary. Families who have occupied two houses are closing one, and two families enter one house. No one is putting out money for repairs. To such an extent is economy practiced that it seems to threaten productive industry and bring trouble upon laboring classes."

"I tell them that it is foolish to do so, for while the general claim is made that this is done for economy to save money for the war, in reality it is extravagance, because by the stopping of the regular channels of industry the necessary funds and provisions cannot be produced. It is said that at present the emperor is eating from only one dish, a rice bowl, and that his food is the same as that given to the soldiers. He is doing this, they say, to set an example of economy and show sympathy with the people."

PITCHER'S ARM HIS FORTUNE

Young Twirler Captures One of the Fair Heiresses With $200,000 Dot.

The second chapter of a romance that started on a baseball diamond two years ago was made known the other day by Abram Nelson of New Market, N. J., who announced the engagement of his niece, Miss Mabel Lefler, one of the Fair heirs, to George Whitley of Plainfield, N. J., says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. Miss Lefler was the favorite niece of Mrs. Charles L. Fair, who supported her since she was a girl of six years.

Under the terms of the settlement made between the Fairs and the Nelsons, Miss Lefler receives $200,000. Young Whitley is a draftsman in a Plainfield machine shop and is without means other than his wages. He is a crack amateur pitcher and won the heart of Miss Lefler when he twirled the ball for the New Market baseball club, of which Abram Nelson is president. Miss Lefler is the belle of the village of New Market.

Royalties at National Conventions.

There promises to be royal blood in the national conventions this summer, says the Washington Post. Hawaii will furnish the strain. The Republicans in that territory are going to send a distinguished delegation to Chicago, headed by Governor Carter, who expects first to visit Washington. Delegate Jonah Kūhiō Kalanianoʻōhe, now in the United States, is another of the delegates designated by a convention which met several weeks ago. Prince Kūhiō's kinsman, Prince David Kawānanakoa, who enjoys the unique distinction of having had the casting vote in the committee on resolutions at Kansas City four years ago for a reaffirmation of the Chicago platform, is slated as a Democratic delegate to St. Louis from the island of Oahu.

Trees to Check Snowdrifts.

The Great Western Railway company has adopted a novel plan for protecting its right of way from drifting snows, which so frequently impede train operations, says the Chicago Record-Herald. The company has ordered several hundred thousand evergreen trees from an Iowa nursery and will plant them thickly along the right of way on all of the main track of the company. In time the trees will take the place of the board snow breaks, which are continually getting out of place, need almost constant repair and frequent replacing at considerable expense. The tree planting will provide the company with a snow break that will be effective for all time and in addition will beautify the right of way.

A Town's Soap Restrictions.

Soap, tobacco and stationery cannot be sold after 6:30 in the evening or before 7 o'clock in the morning hereafter in Belleville, Ill., by decree of the clerks' union. The prohibition on tobacco after sundown was extended to soap, stationery and other articles sold by druggists and other stores.

HIS ONE GOOD AGT

Everybody said that John Gaunt's name fitted him admirably, not so much that he was a thin man, but that he was such a plain one. As for his modesty, it was of the first water. There was but one occasion when he got the better of it, and that was when he presumed to ask Cornelia Wadsworth, a girl very much younger than he, to marry him. Her reply to his proposition was that she would not marry a man a quarter of a century older than herself. Upon receiving this reply John's victory over his modesty was turned into a rout.

"Yes," he said, "I'm too old for you; altogether too old. Besides, I'm not such a man as such a girl as you ought to marry. You are always doing good, while I don't remember in all my life having performed but one good act."

"What was that?" asked Cornelia. "Years ago when I lived in a lawless community and it was necessary to elect a sheriff of my county the people, realizing that the sheriff was likely to be killed most any day by some desperado, cast about for the man who could best be spared and pitched upon me. I had a good deal of trouble and some narrow escapes from horse thieves and such like, and was nearly killed two or three times."

"One day a murder was committed on a farm lying out in a sparsely settled region, and I was sent to arrest a man who was strongly suspected of the murder. He wasn't a murderous looking man at all, but a peaceable farmer with a wife and two little children. He was very much surprised, but made no resistance, leaving his terror stricken wife and going with me without the least resistance. Indeed, he said he would rather not live at all than live with such an imputation resting upon him. I took him to the county seat and lodged him in jail."

"There were some suspicious circumstances that pointed to him as the murderer, but he was such a respectable appearing man and told his story so honestly that he was acquitted."

"There was a man in those parts—I always believed he owed the accused some grudge—who declared that if he wasn't hanged by the county the job would be done by a committee. The day the trial came to a conclusion I learned that this fellow was in town and an effort would be made to lynch the prisoner as soon as he was made free. So instead of turning him out I took him to my house. That night I was awakened by a hammering on my door, and taking my gun, I raised the sash of an upper window and asked what was wanted. I saw a dozen men below and knew well enough without asking what they had come for. When they told me I parleyed with them, having sent one of my deputies I had kept in the house on purpose to some of the best men in town notifying them to come and help. I held the lynchers till they saw persons hurrying from different directions. Then they tried to batter down my door. They couldn't do this very easily, for I always kept bars ready and had slipped them in place. Seeing that I had baffled them, their leader shot at me, giving me a wound of which I bear the scar today. Then the party, seeing my men gathering in large numbers, made off for re-enforcements."

"A horse and buggy was got out of the barn, and, though wounded, I drove my man away under cover of the darkness. You see, I couldn't let any one else do it, as I was sheriff. No one ever knew where I took the man, but no one ever saw him in that region again. I went out and got his family and carried them to where I had taken him. The reason why I mention this work as a good act is because his wife told me it was. 'There was a little girl in the family that I carried in my arms. She looked at me kind of queer and when I went away gave me a hug that I've never forgotten.'

Cornelia listened to this brief narrative with a constantly growing interest. When it was finished her shining eyes were fixed on John Gaunt, her lips were parted, her breath came quick. "What was the name of the man you saved?" she asked.

"Harlow—William Harlow."

Miss Wadsworth continued to gaze upon John Gaunt with an expression that had not been a stupid fellow, would have set his heart bounding.

"You see," he continued, "that you're right not to take a man for a husband who, besides being much too old for you, never did but one good act in his life, and I have always considered that

HAIR NATURALLY ABUNDANT.

When It Is Free of Dandruff, It Grows Luxuriantly.

Hair preparations and dandruff cures, as a rule, are sticky or irritating affairs that do no earthly good. Hair, when not diseased, grows naturally, luxuriantly. Dandruff is the cause of nine-tenths of all hair trouble, and dandruff is caused by a germ. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ; and, so far, the only hair preparation that will positively destroy the germ is Newbro's Herpicide—absolutely harmless, free from grease, sediment, dye matter or dangerous drugs. It always itching instantly; makes hair glossy and soft as silk. 'Destroy the cause, you remove the effect.' Sold by leading druggists. to be nothing more than any one would have done under the circumstances."

"I think any good and brave man would have done it," replied Cornelia.

"Just so," said John, easily convinced from her words that even what he had been told by the wife of the man he had saved was purely emotional.

"But something," the girl went on, "being good and brave even in the line of duty counts for a great deal. The world is full of heroes and heroines, but they don't always meet with a merited reward. You saved a man's life, and in saving his life you saved his wife and children from a terrible blow and lives of misery."

"I never happened to think of it in that light," said John.

"Heaven sometimes sends us a reward for doing a good act long after it has been done. You wish the love of a woman. I will be that woman. I am the little girl who hugged you. My father changed his name after his trouble. I am Cornelia Harlow."

And for the second time in her life she hugged her father's preserver.

THE INSIDE INN AT ST. LOUIS

An Ideal Place for Visitors Right Inside the Grounds—No Tiresome Journeys to or From the City—No Crowding—No Discomfort—Time and Money Saved.

No matter who you are or what you are, no matter if your purse be slender or otherwise, if you wish to see the World's Fair at St. Louis and enjoy every moment of your time, the best place to stay—indeed, the only place to stay—is The Inside Inn.

The building of this splendid hostelry has marked a new departure in world's fair accommodations, it being the first time that the administration of any exposition has taken the question of the lodging and creature comforts of its visitors under its personal supervision. This the World's Fair Management has done. The Inside Inn has been built with the same lavish hands that has marked all other constructions at St. Louis. It is three stories high, 400 feet wide, 300 feet long, contains 2,257 bedrooms and can seat 2,500 people in its dining room at one sitting.

Every modern convenience obtainable has been installed and the comforts thus afforded enable visitors to enjoy the sights of the Exposition whenever they please and then go to their rooms for a rest without along an tiresome journey to and from their lodgings. A great saving in time and money is consequently effected, as sight seeing can be begun directly after breakfast and continued late into the night without any exasperating run for the "last car." No admission fee other than the first is required from those guests who remain within the precincts of the Fair at The Inside Inn.

The Inside Inn is run on both the European and American plans and the rates are exceedingly moderate, ranging from $1.50 to $5.00 European, and from $2.00 to $7.00 American, including daily admission in both cases. The enormous capacity of The Inside Inn assures first-class accommodations for all—no matter when or in what numbers they come—but those who prefer to secure their rooms in advance may make reservations now for any period up to December 1st. A post card addressed to The Inside Inn, Administration Bldg., World's Fair Grounds, St. Louis, will bring you an interesting booklet, giving full details and plans.

A Black Silk Hat Bag.

A black silk hat bag is mentioned by a Table Talk correspondent as a great comfort for man or woman, especially in traveling across the continent. The hat slips easily in and out and is perfectly protected from dust when not in use. Materials: One and one-third yards of good quality of black India silk twenty-four inches wide and three yards of black satin ribbon one-half inch wide. Make the bag with a French seam. Make a three inch hem in the top. Stitch two rows half an inch apart above the hem for the black ribbon draw strings.

Rhubarb Jelly.

Rhubarb jelly is delicious and especially appetizing with meats. To make it cut up the stalks without peeling, then steam them until very soft, lay them in a sieve to drain overnight or put in a jelly bag, as preferred. Measure the juice and allow one pound of sugar to every pint of rhubarb juice and let it simmer ten minutes or until it begins to thicken on the edge; then add the sugar and let it simmer till it jellies on the spoon or when dropped on a cool plate. Remove the scum carefully as it forms and turn into glasses to harden.

WHAT HE WEARS.

Comfortable Collars—The Convenient Coat Shirt in Favor.

It is the thoroughly well dressed man whose collar absolutely fits, and the precision herein expressed is carried into every detail of his apparel. To such dressers it will be interesting news that a favorite brand of collars is now being made in quarter inch sizes. The former half inch scale proved inadequate to many men, who found a given number of inches a trifle small and an additional half inch just a shade too large. Splitting the difference has brought the fitting to a nicety never before attained, for with quarter, half, three-quarter and full sizes at command there is no possible excuse for man's discomfort in apparel, so far as his collars are concerned.

As far as styles in collars are concerned, fashion laws are not stringent, and conservative masculine dressers avail themselves of the blessed privilege of wearing whatever they consider is most becoming. More depends on how a thing is worn and when it is worn than just exactly what specific shape is worn. With a proper understanding of what items should and should not be worn in conjunction, and a reasonable compliance with the time and place requirements of dress ethics, a man is at liberty to follow his individual preferences.

Both wing and fold collars are popular, and while the fold has heretofore been almost universally identified with strictly negligee dress, it will be particularly smart this season to wear with a plaited, soft bosom shirt a low wing collar, supplemented by—not a four-in-hand, but a soft, broad end tie. The latest shapes in fold collars show well rounded points, brought closely together, or having moderate spacing; also the ultra fashionable shape, with sharp points three inches in depth.

In all collars medium heights prevail. This is speaking comparatively, for medium to one man may mean high to another and low to the third, and the correct height must afford no suggestion of a whitewashed fence surrounding the ears nor, on the other hand, leave an expanse of bare neck.

LATEST SHAPES IN FOLD COLLARS.

between the coat collar and hair. The former is bad enough, but the latter is positively criminal. Three of the newest shapes in fold collars are pictured on this page, and any one of them will prove comfortable for warm weather wear.

BECOMING A MOTHER

Is an ordeal which all women approach with indescribable fear, for nothing compares with the pain and horror of child-birth. The thought of the suffering and danger in store for her, robs the expectant mother of all pleasant anticipations of the coming event, and casts over her a shadow of gloom which cannot be shaken off. Thousands of women have found that the use of Mother's Friend during pregnancy robs confinement of all pain and danger, and insures safety to life of mother and child. This scientific liniment is a god-send to all women at the time of their most critical trial. Not only does Mother's Friend carry women safely through the perils of child-birth, but its use gently prepares the system for the coming event, prevents "morning sickness," and other discomforts of this period.

particularly attractive, showing a preponderance of fine, soft textures in delicate colorings and artistic designs. Gray is strongly in the lead, and some of its combinations with either white or black are immensely effective. Gun metal colorings are even more in fashion than last summer and have a delightful coolness of appearance.

The vogue of the coat shirt steadily increases, and the only wonder is that any other cut can exist. Any shirt which opens all the way down the front comes under this title. The coat shirt in dress form as it originally appeared proved an immediate success and has now extended its province to all kinds, the latest development being the soft bosom negligee. The wash silk negligee shirt, by the way, has proved such a comfortable garment in the past that it will have another and probably many more summers of popularity.—Designer.

PRINCE PU LUN TSEE.

He is Receiving Much Attention During His Visit in This Country. Since his arrival in this country a few weeks ago Prince Pu Lun, president of the Chinese commission to the world's fair, has been the recipient of more attention than any visitor from his country since Li Hung Chang. The prince is both nephew and cousin of the present emperor of China. He is thirty years old and, despite his rank and the gorgeous attire that custom dictates he should wear, seems inclined to be democratic in his manners.

The costume in which he ordinarily appears designates to a Chinaman the high rank that he holds at home. His attire includes a yellow jacket and a three eyed peacock feather. His black velvet red corded cap is surmounted by a round knob known as a Chinese ruby, and having great value as a gem. He travels with sixteen attendants.

CHARACTER MAKING.

The Home of the Genuine Life School of Moral Training.

Character is catching—provided one who has it to give can get close enough to the one who is to take it. The reason the school cannot do the whole or the chief part of moral training is that even in the best schools and with the best teachers the children have to be handled so largely in masses and at arm's length. In the home the parent lives close to the individual child all the time, and whatever the parent has in the way of character to give the child is pretty sure to take without knowing when or how or even being aware of what is going on, until days, weeks, months, perhaps years after, he breaks out with just such feelings, tones, tempers, looks, words and deeds as he had been catching all the while.

The child learns his moral principles by induction from concrete cases in his own experience and observation. A principle that does not rest on some such case makes about as much impression on a child as a drop of water on a duck's back. The example of the parent is the most potent moral influence over the character and conduct of the child. The kindness, the justice, the temperance, the purity, the charity, the patience, the courage, the foresight, the wisdom, that the child sees exemplified in the life of the father and mother he will tend to incorporate into his own life.

Of course the opposite qualities are equally contagious—unkindness, uncharitableness, impatience, foolishness and the like. What shall the parent do who not infrequently is guilty of these odious things and gets detected in them by the child's discerning eyes? There is only one thing to do.

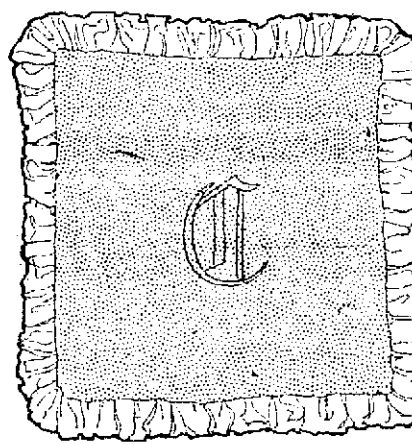

A great many people confess their sins in a lump to God on Sunday who cannot bring themselves to frankly acknowledge a fault to their own children as soon as they recognize it as having been committed. The most sympathetic influence over a child can be gained on no less searching terms.

An obvious corollary from all this is the fearful blunder which busy and preoccupied parents make who turn their children over to governesses and servants at the most impressionable period of their lives and never get near enough to the child's life to influence him one way or the other.

The wonder is that children brought up in that way do not turn out bad more often than they do. Their salvation is due to the fact that the governess and servants are often in all moral essentials much the superior of the parents who are capable of turning their children's training over to anybody but themselves.—Dr. William De Witt Hyde in Good Housekeeping.

Useful Sachets.

Scented pads of all sizes may be made to slip between articles in bureau drawers and trunks. The illus-

A PAD TO SLIP BETWEEN CLOTHING. The woman who affects the picturesque style nowadays shows a pad made of pale pink silk covered with sheer white organdie. A tiny ruffle of the material edged with baby ribbon is let into the edges. The top may be decorated in any desired manner with marking letters or small embroidered flowers. Figured organdie or dimity may be used to fashion the sachet if preferred, and narrow lace may be put on the edge.

The Picturesque Style.

The woman who affects the picturesque style nowadays has a large range of choice. The mode of half-dressing renders the large hat a most suitable adjunct to the gown made after those worn in the time of Louis XIV. The scarf is one of those little additions to dress which a woman can don with great significance, giving an added grace to her movements and to her toilet. Some very pretty ones are being made of tulle bordered with a ruche, in which nestle small artificial flowers, such as lilies or minute roses.

Strawberry Cups.

Scald a pint of milk and while hot stir in two tablespoonsful of arrowroot dissolved in a little cold milk; add a quarter of a cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt, half a teaspoonful of strawberry extract; cook until creamy, then beat in one yolk and the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs; butter small cups and dust thickly with stale macaroons crushed very fine; fill with the arrowroot mixture and set on ice to become chilled; unmold and garnish with strawberries; serve a boiled custard sauce with these.

Household Brevities.

When boiling a fowl do not add salt till the last hour of cooking.

When crackers are used in stuffing a fowl, use less dressing than if bread-crumbs were the base of the forcemeat. Crackers swell more than crumbs.

Do not lay a carpet without a lining under it, even if it is nothing but a newspaper.

Break lettuce leaves apart. Do not cut them.

Never add flavoring extracts to a dish till it is cold. If put in while hot, much of the flavor passes off in the steam.

CIRCUS

WAS LATE GETTING HERE, BUT IT CAME

Barnum & Bailey's Big Show Was the Attraction in Newark Thursday—The Big Parade.

Barnum & Bailey's circus was the leading attraction in Newark Thursday and the great show was greeted by immense crowds at the afternoon performance.

The show arrived on special trains from Canton via the Pan Handle and because of the rather late hour in arriving in Newark the parade was not given until 12.30 o'clock.

The parade was one of the best of the kind ever seen in Newark. Besides the 238 horses in line, there were 18 camels and 20 elephants. A large number of allegorical floats and gaudy cages from the menagerie were used with good effect.

A noticeable feature was the large number that came from the rural districts.

Chief of Police Sheridan had previously made arrangements to take care of the crowds and these arrangements will continue until midnight. Five extra policemen were sworn in and the night and day policemen are both doing duty. A number of suspicious characters have followed the show.

The immense tents are spread over the Y. M. C. A. Athletic grounds and the smaller tents have been pitched on adjoining ground.

The Barnum and Bailey menagerie is probably the finest carried by any traveling show, and the collection of freaks is something that has never been equalled before.

The circus proper is all that has been claimed for it. Feats of daring and exhibitions of skill were numerous and the whole performance was enlivened by innumerable clowns, whose funny doings were laughable in the extreme.

DRIVER

SPRANG ONTO BACK OF FRIGHTENED HORSE,

And With Remarkable Nerve Succeeded in Quieting Him and Escaped Injury.

One of the most frightful and exciting runaway accidents that has occurred in Newark for some time occurred about four o'clock on Wednesday evening on West Main street. Mr. James Stapleton, a driver of one of Bolton's hacks, was driving along the street when in some manner he lost his hold on the reins. The horses began running when Mr. Stapleton, with a great display of nerve, sprang down on the pole and from thence on the back of one of the horses. The horses continued running and dashed into the fence at the residence of James McGonagle, where one of the horses fell and was held down by the hack which ran on to him.

During the run Mr. Stapleton was thrown from the horse but held on to him until the crash came. Fortunately he escaped serious injury and the horse was somewhat skinned somewhat about one of his legs. The hack was only slightly damaged.

CASE AFTER CASE.

Plenty More Like This in Newark.

Scores of Newark people can tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills. Many a happy citizen makes a public statement of his experience. Here is a case of it. What better proof of merit can be had than such endorsement?

C. B. Myers, 30 South Front street, freight conductor, B. & O. says:—"I had a pain across the small of my back for four or five years. It was such a constant ache that I had little chance to forget it. I went to Crayton's drug store and got Doan's Kidney Pills. This was not the first medicine I had used in trying to get rid of my trouble, but I claim it is the first that ever gave me quick and lasting relief, for the backache entirely disappeared."

Psychic Moment.

Said the man with the cane:

"I took a trip out into the country with a friend of mine the other day, and we had a great time and a hearty laugh. I've been living in the city all my life, and, of course, I didn't know how to harness a horse."

"What has that to do with the trip in the country? Just this: My friend and I went up to Doylestown, and as the day was bright and balmy we thought we'd like a carriage ride. So we hired a horse and buggy and drove into the country among the Bucks county hills. At the other end of the road we were kind to the horse and, taking every bit of harness from him, allowed him to eat his lunch in comfort, while we munched our sandwiches."

"Well, it was all right until we started to put the harness on again. Then the discovery was made that neither of us was able to do the trick. We were stuck, but by doing a great deal of thinking we managed to get all the harness in place except the bit. We tried to put that in the horse's mouth, but the animal wouldn't open his mouth for a cent."

"Well," said my companion, "we'll simply have to wait; that's all."

"Wait for what? I asked in surprise."

"Why," was the reply, "we'll have to wait until the horse yawns."—Philadelphia Press.

BOOT AND SHOE FACTS.

New England makes two-thirds of the boots and shoes produced in this country.

In its making the modern shoe passes through the hands of from 100 to 200 people and the processes of not less than fifty separate machines.

American shoes go to every part of the globe, and in whatever place men want to make shoes by modern methods they must come to America—and to New England—for the machinery.

The value of the shoe output of New England centers amounts to $175,000,000, a sum exceeding by $40,000,000 the worth of all the gold and silver money coined annually by the United States government.

Team of Moose.

Jack McQuestion, who runs a farm at Forty Mile, on the Yukon river, in Alaska, has the most remarkable farm team on the American continent. It is nothing less than a pair of four-year-old moose, captured while young, broken to the harness and trained to serve as draft animals.

McQuestion was an early stamper into the Klondike, but he did not succeed in locating any valuable claims, and the high price of farm and garden produce in the country induced him to abandon prospecting and take to farming instead. So he located on the Yukon river in American territory and the first season raised a good crop of garden truck, which brought him fancy prices. But he was considerably handicapped in his operations by not having any horses or other farm animals. He had heard that moose could be successfully tamed, so in the following spring he took to the hills and captured a pair of moose calves. When the calves were a year old, they were quite tame, and he succeeded in getting them to work in harness, first singly and then together. That year he did some work with them, increasing the amount from year to year as they grew older, until now he has in them a valuable pair of farm animals. They are as strong as cattle and much more active as well as more controllable.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Trout Poachers.

A favorite method of trout thieves is to take a sack or bag, weight it with stones and place it, mouth up stream, in the narrowest part of the brook. Then one of the rascals comes down stream, wading, poking under the banks with a stick and scaring the trout, who rush down stream into the sack. This sort of thing, varied now and then by exploding dynamite under the water and gathering the dead or stunned fish, which float, has cleaned out some of our public trout waters. In other words, these thieves have robbed the public and have sold the proceeds of the robbery for their own benefit. The game laws are not nearly stringent enough. Fines never deter such rascals from attempting to reimburse themselves. Imprisonment at hard labor is the only antidote.—Harper's Weekly.

THE ICON PRESENTED TO GENERAL KUROPATKIN BY ST. PETERSBURG.

Every Russian admiral and general who starts for the front, and every private soldier for that matter, carries a sacred icon with him to protect him from Japanese bullets. General Kuropatkin was presented with no fewer than eighty icons before he left St. Petersburg. The one illustrated here was presented by the St. Petersburg town council. An icon is simply a holy picture or mosaic representing Christ, the Virgin or some other saint or martyr, and it is commonly supposed to be miraculous either in origin or power.

WRECK

OF PASSENGER TRAIN NEAR EAST LIVERPOOL

Results in Injury to Twenty, Some Being Quite Serious—Collided on a Curve.

East Liverpool, O., May 26.—West-bound passenger train No. 303 on the Cleveland and Pittsburgh railroad, in rounding a curve above here Wednesday afternoon, ran into a number of empty freight cars and a bad wreck resulted. Twenty persons were injured, some of them quite seriously. Among the latter are:

Engineer Harrison Headley, East Liverpool; badly bruised and shoulder hurt.

Fireman A. J. Williams, Cleveland, crushed and bruised.

Conductor H. McKee, Bellaire, bruised.

Express Messenger Johnson, Cleveland; bruised.

Mrs. J. A. Cotton, colored teacher, North Carolina; head and shoulders bruised.

James Costello, Cleveland; severely cut over eye.

Miss Minnie Wright, Teacher, Harrisburg, Pa.; teeth knocked out.

Mrs. Dan Dutach and child, Pittsburg; severely bruised.

Mrs. Isabella Townsend, aged 77, Tarentum, Pa.; head badly cut; teeth knocked out and hand crushed.

John Newman, head cut.

Frank Miller, Pittsburg; neck sprained and face cut.

W. W. Harker, pottery manufacturer, East Liverpool; bruised.

Engineer Headley had only been out of the hospital a few days, having recovered from injuries received in a former wreck. Mrs. Dutach, an Austrian, was taking her four-week-old child to Cleveland, where her husband was at work. She was thrown face downward into the aisle, the child beneath her.

The more seriously injured were taken to a local hospital and the others, after receiving attention of physicians, continued their journey. The cars kept on the track and were not telescoped. The damage to the engine and baggage car amount to several thousand dollars. It is said the switching crew sent out no flagman to warn the passenger train.

NOT OPERATED UNDER BOARD OF TRADE

At a meeting held Wednesday the Board of Trade directors adopted a resolution to set the board in a fair position, as a result of a protest which came from Newark against its reported participation in the merchants' free interurban trips. The board made it known that the Merchants' association is not operated under Board of Trade auspices, but that it is a separate and distinct organization.—State Journal.

CATTLE RANCHES FREE

Large Tracts of Land In Nebraska For Homesteaders.

EXCELLENT PASTURAGE FOR STOCK

United States Government Will Give Away Over Eight Million Acres. Gifts Will Drive Out the Cattle Barons and Give Poor Persons a Chance For Free Homes.

"A Nebraska cattle ranch one mile square absolutely free" is the offer which the government is preparing to make to every man or head of a family in the United States, says a special dispatch from Omaha, Neb., to the New York Herald. As there are 8,844,737 of these acres from which a selection may be made any one desiring to become the possessor of 640 acres of fine grazing land will have no trouble finding a tract which is suited to his taste.

This land has recently been opened in these large tracts by the Kinkaid bill, which passed congress and was signed by the president of the United States on the last day of the recent session, and the law becomes operative on June 26, 1904. On and after that date these 8,844,737 acres, most of which comprise as fine grazing land as there is in the world, will be open to the public as homesteads. As an example of the quality of some of this land there is in Rock county 220,302 acres of public lands, and yet at one railroad station in that county there is more hay shipped to market than at any other railroad point in the whole world.

The lands affected by the Kinkaid bill have been open for homesteading in lots of 160 acres each for many years, but not being suitable for agricultural purposes and 160 acres not being large enough on which to raise cattle the lands have never been taken up by homesteaders. However, a square mile of this land will furnish pasturage and feed for 100 head of cattle throughout the entire year.

Great tracts of this land have been fenced by the cattle barons of Nebraska, and it was to have these illegally constructed fences removed that the government last year sent Colonel Mosley, the former Confederate cavalry leader, into the state to enforce the law regarding these fences. It is said that one ranch, with headquarters at Ellsworth, Neb., had under such fencing nearly 2,000,000 acres of government land. There were dozens of other great ranches which also included hundreds of thousands of government land within their fences.

But the Kinkaid bill sounds the deathknell of the cattle barons, whose herds of thousands roamed over the ranges, more effectively than any fence removal order which the president might promulgate. With settlers from all parts of the United States flocking in and taking homesteads of 640 acres each the public domain in Nebraska is a thing of only a few months more, and then, without the necessary lands upon which to graze their herds, the cattle barons must go out of business.

This is the last large distribution of good land which the United States government will ever make. It has long been recognized that the great plains of Nebraska constituted the best body of public lands extant, and with the transfer into private hands passes the last chance of the poor to get free homes in anything like large numbers.

It is only the poor man who can homestead this land—that is, any man owning more than 160 acres of any kind of land anywhere in barred from participating in the Nebraska land distribution. According to the provisions of the law any person who is the head of a family and who is a citizen of the United States may take up a homestead, provided he is not already the owner of more than 160 acres of land.

Single women who wish to take a homestead must be of age. Any young man more than twenty-one years may be a "homesteader." The law requires each person to make out that he has personally examined the land for which he applies.

The government makes no charge whatever for the land provided the homesteader lives upon it for five years.

Chicago's Freight Subway.

The new freight subway, forty feet under Chicago's business streets, is almost completed, says Four Track News. Several months ago it was in use in the parts finished first, and now the entire system is about to open. The new road expects to handle long to handle 300,000 tons of freight daily, thus greatly relieving the congested streets and making the delivery much more rapid. The subway connects all the depots, freight houses, hotels, office buildings and business houses in the heart of the city. It is another of Chicago's innovations that will probably be adopted by other cities after its practicability has been proved.

Dead Center of Population.

The census bureau has figured out that the exact center of population in the United States is latitude 39 degrees, 59 minutes 50 seconds north, longitude 82 degrees, 48 minutes, 54 seconds west. This is near Columbus, Bartholomew county, Ind., and Henry Marr, a farmer, lives there, says the New York Journal. If a person is desirous of visiting the spot a better idea of its location can be got by asking most any resident of Columbus. Almost invariably the answer to such a question will be "five miles southwest of Columbus in Ben Marr's barn lot." The center was recently marked with a monument.

Henry Acted His Part.

But It Didn't Please Her

"NOW, Henry," said the bride, "I want you to understand distinctly that I do not wish to be taken for a bride. I am going to act exactly as if I were an old married woman. So, dearest, do not think me cold and unloving if I treat you very practically when there is anybody by."

"I don't believe I can pass for an old married man," said Henry. "I am so fond of you that I am bound to show it. I am sure to betray myself."

"No, you mustn't. It's easy enough. And I insist that you behave just like all old married men do. Do you hear?"

"Well, darling, I'll try, but I know I shall not succeed."

On the first evening of their arrival at their hotel the bride retired, and the groom fell in with a whim party, with whom he sat playing cards until 4 o'clock in the morning. His wife spent the weary hours in weeping. At last he turned up and met his grief-stricken bride with the ill-timed question, "Well, ain't I doing the old married man like a dandy?"

She never referred to the subject again, and everybody in future knew that they had just been married.

EGYPTA PLEASES

The Musical Story of Moses Given at the Auditorium Wednesday Night Was Pre-eminently a Triumph For Individual Members of the Cast.

The first performance of Egypta was given Wednesday night in the Auditorium, under the direction of W. D. Chenery and a fair sized audience was present when the curtain went up for the first act.

Those who attended were amply repaid as the rendition of the musical story of the great Hebrew law giver, was in many respects artistic and may be taken as an earnest of what the next two performances on Friday night and Saturday afternoon will be. The regular theatre orchestra was augmented for the Egypta performance and under the leadership of Mr. Arthur L. Judson, never played better, lending much of effectiveness to the rendition of the musical gems with which Egypta abounds.

The opening may after all be said, be considered a triumph for the individual members of the cast, who seemed to be inspired to their best efforts. Miss Elsie Hirschberg as the mother of Moses immediately scored a personal success in the very first act, and although she maintained the standard of her work throughout, it was in the scene in which she hides the child Moses that her beautiful contralto voice and artistic dramatic intensity were given full play. She received generous applause and it was well deserved.

Miss Eva Francis as Zipporah, surprised those who had never before heard her sing, with the pure quality of her voice, and in the love duet with Mr. Ball showed a most intelligent conception of the beautiful music.

Miss Freda Pfeffer as Miriam, sang the most difficult soprano number of the evening, in a most creditable manner, and in the "Praise Him" trio carried the trying soprano part in a satisfactory manner.

Miss Bertha Penney as Pharaoh's daughter, had several solos in which she used her strong and pleasing voice to the very best advantage.

Miss Mary Baldwin sang the Angels' Sorensen by Braga in a most feeling manner and this gem with cello obligata was one of the best things of the evening.

Mr. Walter Bentley Ball as Moses, and Prof. N. B. Yearley as Aaron were most excellent in solo work as well as the duets and trios in which they participated.

F. H. Ottman was well cast as Pharaoh and George Mitchell's Amram, Rollin Williams' Jethro and B. S. Swingles Overseer were all well done.

The children's chorus was one of the best features of the evening and in fact the entire production was well worthy of the best patronage Newark can afford.

The scenery and electric effects were features which added very materially to the beauty of the performance.

Miss Letitia Felix in the trying and difficult role of accompanist, showed true artistic skill and her work gained the unstinted praise of Mr. Chenery, as well as the members of the orchestra.

CONVICT

SHOT TWO GUARDS AND KILLED HIMSELF.

Desperate Criminal Was One of the Gang of Somerset Bank Robbers Convicted in 1901.

Columbus, Ohio, May 26.—Frank Greene, a bank robber in the penitentiary, shot two guards yesterday afternoon, and then put a bullet into his own brain. He died instantly.

Guard Henry Gearhart of Ironton, was shot twice in the breast. The prison physicians say he cannot recover.

Guard Albert Hubler of Trumbull county, was shot through the fleshy part of the arm. His wound is slight. Green was working in the shoeshop. Without warning he started to fire a Guard Gearhart with a 38-caliber revolver. The two men were three feet apart. He fired twice at Gearhart, and both bullets took effect, one in the left and one in the right breast. Guard Hubler, who was in the shoeshop, rushed to the aid of Gearhart. He got between the prisoner and Gearhart. Green fired four shots out of his five-shooter. He put the fourth bullet into his own brain. The heavy shot fractured the skull of the forehead.

Warden Hershey has not yet made up his mind as to what caused Greene to run amuck. The prisoner was ill with typhoid fever some weeks ago, and it is surmised that he may have suffered temporary mental aberration.

Greene was received June 11, 1901, to serve ten years for burglary. He was sent up with a gang of six men convicted of blowing the Somerset bank. The band was a desperate one. Greene had not given the prison officials much trouble, although he had been reported twice by Guard Gearhart for trivial offenses.

Wednesday morning the murderous prisoner was relieved of the privilege of the halls for 30 days. Green may have shot Gearhart out of revenge, and then took his own life so that he would not have to pay the penalty.

Gearhart has been a guard four years. He has a wife and two children.

Columbus, O., May 26.—Henry G. Gearhart, the guard shot by convict Frank Green yesterday, died from lung wounds at 9:15 this morning. There is yet no clue as to where Green got the revolver.

Golder Rod Lodge, No. 100, will hold a special meeting at their hall Monday evening and all members of the order should be present. Some good speakers have been secured for the occasion. Refreshments will be served.

CONDUCTORS

WILL HAVE THEIR RUNS BROKEN AT NEWARK.

Some Will Run From Newark to Pittsburg, Others From Newark to Cincinnati and Return.

The passenger runs on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad between Cincinnati and Pittsburg have been changed so that all the men on these runs can make their homes in Newark. As changed their runs will be from Newark to Pittsburg, and from Newark to Cincinnati. It is likely that the conductors on the Cincinnati run will be Beecher, Williams, Butterworth, Doyle and Lamb. The Pittsburg division will be taken care of by Conductors Ellis, Thornton and Shaffer and three conductors from the Pittsburg division. This last order is very pleasing to the men as it will not require them to leave their homes, and they are very thankful for the interest Superintendent Bachelder has taken in the matter.
